 Randolph Community College & RCC Foundation
2008-2009 REPORT TO THE COMMUNITY

Creating Opportunities.
Changing Lives.

RANDOLPH COMMUNITY COLLEGE

FROM THE PRESIDENT

In this Report to the Community, we share with our colleagues, friends, and community our commitment to serving the people, businesses, and industries of Randolph County by “Creating Opportunities, Changing Lives.” It has been a year of change, progress, expansion, and service, and we are delighted to share our story with you.

With a record enrollment, we now serve more than 3,100 college curriculum students per semester and will serve approximately 8,400 continuing education students this year. More than 150 community business and industry leaders serve on advisory committees for our academic programs, giving us valuable input and feedback on what the community needs from Randolph Community College. After all, we believe that the college is here to serve the community rather than the other way around. Therefore, we daily work very closely with community agencies, institutions, governments, school systems, and businesses throughout our county.

Dr. Howard Thurman once said, “Don’t ask yourself what the world needs. Ask yourself what makes you come alive, and go do that, because what the world needs is people who have come alive.”

Randolph Community College was one of only 11 community colleges in North Carolina that met “Exceptional Institutional Performance” standards on the annual accountability measures for North Carolina’s 58 community colleges, according to a report released in June 2009. In addition to meeting or exceeding all eight system standards, these 11 schools met additional performance goals.

RCC adopted a new brand for the College in spring 2009. The theme “Creating Opportunities, Changing Lives” and a new College logo were created through an extensive process of focus groups and meetings with students, faculty, and staff and has slowly been introduced to the College constituents throughout the spring and summer. The logo was tweaked to give RCC’s well-known curved “R” an updated look as well as adding an eye-catching color, orange, to the College’s traditional blue.

Mission: To provide quality education, training, and workforce development to meet the needs of our students and community.

Highlights

RCC's Associate Degree Nursing graduates completed their NCLEX-RN state board exams with a 100% pass rate. In addition, RCC's Certified Nursing Assistant class had a 100% pass rate on their board exams.

The State Board of Community Colleges met at Randolph Community College's Asheboro Campus in April 2009. In addition to their regular business meeting, the board members toured the campus and were welcomed by College and community leaders.

The RCC community was busy in 2008-09 preparing for a reaccreditation visit by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS). As part of that process, RCC identified and developed a Quality Enhancement Plan called WriteNOW!, which targets improving student writing across the curriculum.

John F. Rash, RCC Photographic Technology instructor, gave a lecture in digital photography at Nanjing Normal University in Nanjing, China, in March 2009. Rash traveled back to Nanjing in May on a photo exploration trip, accompanied by 10 of his current and former students, who worked together with the students at Nanjing Normal to capture their own impressions of China.

We are growing, changing,
serving our students and our community.

Highlights

Senator Jerry W. Tillman was presented with the 2008 Distinguished Service Award by the RCC Board of Trustees during their annual meeting July 17, 2008. The award recognizes a long-term, extraordinary commitment to the College.

U.S. Representative Howard Coble and N.C. Senator Jerry Tillman were the guest speakers at Randolph Community College's graduation ceremonies held May 8 and 9, 2009, at the new Providence Grove High School gymnasium.

U.S. Senator Richard Burr (R-N.C.) visited the RCC campus on Oct. 8, 2008. Senator Burr toured a couple of key job training areas at the College including Machining and Photographic Technology.

After completing renovations on a leased facility in Hillside Shopping Center, RCC opened its new Cosmetology Center in summer 2009. Classes in the new curriculum program began in August.

RCC installed high-definition videoconferencing equipment at both the Asheboro Campus and the Archdale Center so one instructor can teach in both locations with real time video and audio communications. This allows the College to offer Associate in Arts (College Transfer) classes in Archdale.

Caring environment, focused on student success.

Excellence in Teaching

Susan Teague, instructor of developmental mathematics, was the recipient of the 2008 Excellence in Teaching Award at RCC. Teague has taught at RCC since January 2005. This award recognizes faculty who have consistently demonstrated excellence in teaching. Nominees are selected by their peers.

Staff Award

Kim Cassell, director of recruitment and student activities, was chosen to receive the 2008 Excellence in Staff Award. Recipients are chosen based on their commitment and contributions to the mission of the institution and the North Carolina Community College System; consistent, excellence performance on the job, exhibiting unselfish devotion to duty far and above normal requirements, and significant contribution to the advancement of the institution and its students.

Leadership on All Levels

Dr. Scott Ralls, North Carolina Community College System president, was the keynote speaker for the second annual Student Leadership Academy at RCC in April 2009. Nineteen students participated in the day-long event that included sessions on decision making, personality types and leadership styles, ethics, and leadership in difficult situations.

Chad Williams, director of financial aid at RCC, completed the North Carolina Community College Leadership program during the 2008-09 school year. The program is designed to develop future community college leaders.

Two RCC employees participated in Leadership Randolph, a program of the Asheboro/Randolph Chamber of Commerce. Jerry Simpson, vice president for student services, and Matt Dixon, network administrator, attended eight monthly sessions covering issues such as education, business and industry, tourism, team building, health and human services, government, and community involvement.

Joyce Wolford, director of Foundation operations and executive director of the RCC Foundation, attended a similar leadership program of the Archdale-Trinity Chamber of Commerce.

Driving individuals to the arts.

Richard Petty Ribbon Cutting

RCC opened its $1,750,000 Richard Petty Education Center in July 2009. The 20,000-square-foot building houses the College's Automotive Systems Technology and Autobody Repair programs. It more than doubles the space the programs had in the old buildings. The lobby displays Richard Petty memorabilia and photographs.

Cultural Arts Series/Grant

The Randolph Arts Guild awarded $1250 to RCC to underwrite the expenses of the 2009-2010 Cultural Arts Series. The Grassroots Arts Grant enabled the College to offer its events free of charge to the public. The season included World Stage, a multicultural festival of food and entertainment; Piece Work, a powerful play about textile workers; a faculty lecture on Heroes; an evening with Fred Chappell; and a children's theater presentation by UNCG's Theatre for Young People.

Continuing Education Achievement

Project GATE, or Growing America Through Entrepreneurship, a new federal program to help laid-off workers start their own small businesses, has gotten off to a fast start at RCC. Jim Judge, RCC's GATE counselor who started work in late March 2008, already has 80 clients in the program.

RCC's Small Business Center ranked 5th in the state for the 2007-2008 school year, during which it held 78 seminars with 982 attendees and counseled 144 clients through 776 hours of counseling. That resulted in eight new business start-ups, 227 jobs created, and 110 jobs retained.

In February 2009, RCC hosted a Caregiver College, a one-day intensive training event for home caregivers. This was a cooperative effort between RCC, Randolph Hospital, Hospice of Randolph County, and Crossroads Rest & Retirement Center.

Of the College's expenditures go directly for instruction.

The Randolph Community College Foundation provides scholarships and grants to meet the needs of RCC and our students. Last year, we awarded nearly $100,000 in scholarships to students seeking degrees through a Curriculum program and nearly $12,000 to students receiving occupational training in Continuing Education. We also provided over $6,000 to help students with childcare expenses and over $5,500 for students experiencing unexpected financial emergencies. You'll read about some of the other types of support the Foundation provided to RCC in this Report.

Kenneth Hanson, a Curriculum scholarship recipient who is enrolled in Computer Information Technology, expressed a sentiment felt by many students who receive assistance from the Foundation. "Had I not received these grants, I am not sure how I would have been able to pay for fall and spring semesters. It was only last month that I was desperately trying to find a way to scrape up the money I needed to carry on, and now help has arrived right on time." The RCC Foundation is helping students achieve their educational dreams, find rewarding careers, and provide a fulfilling life for themselves and their families.

The RCC Foundation Board of Directors and I wish to thank every donor who has enabled us to support RCC and our students. We are creating opportunities, changing lives, and meeting needs because of you! As a small token of our gratitude, donors during 2008-2009 as well as those who have reached a cumulative giving level of at least $3,000 are recognized in this Report to the Community.

Steven E. Eblin
President, RCC Foundation

FOUNDATION AMBASSADORS

Associate degree students who have completed a minimum of nine credit hours in the fall semester with a GPA of at least 3.0 and who are enrolled for a minimum of nine credit hours in the spring semester are invited to apply for the Foundation Ambassador program. The selected students represent RCC and the Foundation on campus and in the community. Ambassadors receive many benefits, including an in-state tuition scholarship for three semesters and a $200 book allowance. Meet our Foundation Ambassadors for the 2009-2010 academic year.

Sarah Elizabeth Blackwell is an Associate in Arts (College Transfer) student who plans to transfer to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She wants to go to law school and become a judge. She was recently elected president of the Student Government Association.

Susan Parent is majoring in Photographic Technology and is a member of Phi Theta Kappa honor society. Before coming to RCC, she served in the U.S. Air Force and is a UNC-Wilmington graduate. She hopes to become a commercial photographer.

David Luther is an Associate in Arts (College Transfer) student who plans to double major in psychology and sociology. He plans to continue his education and earn a master's degree. He is interested in criminal psychology.

Jennie Cheng is a Business Administration major. The mother of two, Cheng is on the Dean's List and a member of Phi Theta Kappa honor society. She also volunteers at her children's schools.

New gifts to the RCC Foundation in 2008-2009.

Nationally known photographer Lauren Greenfield talks to photography students.

Through the Photography Challenge Fund, the RCC Foundation has made it possible for the Photographic Technology program to provide many educational opportunities for our students that go beyond activities provided by traditional funding sources. One of the most notable is the Jerry Howell Lecture Series, created in memory of former Department Chair Jerry Howell.

The funding enables us to bring numerous nationally known photography professionals to RCC to speak to our students and the public as well. This has helped promote our photography program and the College as a whole to the community beyond RCC while providing excellent educational opportunities that would not otherwise be possible.

CREATING SUCCESS

Lisa has always enjoyed photography and wanted to earn her degree. She says, "One thing standing in my way was my high school diploma." She enrolled in the General Educational Development program and earned her GED. Upon passing her GED examinations, she earned a certificate from the RCC Foundation to take a free Curriculum class. She started the first year of Photographic Technology this fall with the help of a Foundation scholarship. Lisa says she's "very grateful" for the assistance that "opened up doors" for her. "It has allowed me to buy equipment I need to be successful."

COLLEGE INNOVATION FUND GRANTS

The Foundation offers College Innovation Fund grants to encourage faculty, staff, and students to develop and implement innovative projects that will improve the quality and/or quantity of programs and services at RCC. Grant awards from this fund are given for projects that benefit the College and involve costs that are beyond the College's operational budget. Projects funded in 2008-2009 are described below.

Randolph Reads

In the fall of 2008, citizens of Randolph County were asked to read A Home on the Field by Paul Cuadros and participate in several community events. In conjunction with this effort, RCC held a forum for its students in which Cuadros and a few of the students highlighted in the book discussed issues about the Latino community. Kim Cassell, director of recruiting at RCC, was awarded a College Innovation Fund grant for $800 to fund costs associated with the forum.

Greening Up With Science

Lisa Hughes, assistant director of marketing & design, received $1,972 for a living horticulture lab on campus that includes two gardens and a solar fountain. Our biology students as well as biocamp participants will use the gardens and they beautify our campus. Phi Theta Kappa helped plant one of the gardens near the Health & Science Center.

Thinking for a Change

This grant, in the amount of $1,271, was awarded to Pam Freeze, HRD/Project New Start coordinator, to provide training for 10 Basic Skills and HRD faculty to teach cognitive behavior classes called "Thinking for a Change" at the prison, jail, and the Day Reporting Center. Thinking for a Change is an offender program that integrates cognitive approaches for changing behavior by restructuring offenders' thinking and teaching pro-social cognitive skills.

Library Collection Assessment

Donna Windish, instructional services librarian, was awarded a $2,500 CIF grant to purchase a one-year subscription to Bowker's Book Analysis System so that our Library may compare its print book collection to the core collection titles identified as essential for undergraduate programs. This will allow the Library staff to analyze the books that are needed and the books that need to be discarded.

Tim says the Community Scholarship from the RCC Foundation allowed him to stay in school. When facing job loss, Tim explored his career options and found that healthcare and technology were among the top 10 areas for jobs, so he decided to combine the two and pursue a degree in Healthcare Management Technology. Tim says he looked at other programs, but liked the program at Randolph. This fall his unemployment benefits were set to run out. He says, "The scholarship was an awesome help to me. Without it I would have to have stayed out this semester." Eventually he wants to pursue a master's degree in Healthcare Administration.

RCC continued to grow in 2008-2009, with help from the RCC Foundation and other sources. That growth included the purchase of Klaussner Plant #4 on Industrial Park Avenue by the Randolph County Commission. RCC will renovate this building for classroom space as funds become available. The RCC Foundation also contributed $100,000 toward renovation of the College's Armadillo Café (below) that included new flooring, seating, and redesigned cafeteria lines for more effective customer service.
